

What You Don't Know Can Cost You!

Landlords have been forced into bankruptcy.

Don't be left holding the bag!

U.S. Law Enforcement Agencies are warning landlords and real estate agents. Rental properties are being used for cooking Methamphetamine!

Meth labs leave properties contaminated and landlords faced with clean up bills in the tens of thousands of dollars.

What To Be On The Lookout For:

- Strong/strange odor. (like ether, ammonia, urine, acetone, or other chemicals).
- Windows open all day/night, even in winter
- Renters carrying in propane grill tanks, gas cans, tubing, glass canning jars, coolers.
- Unusual traffic all hours of the day and night
- Excessive trash (Solvent and antifreeze containers, lantern fuel cans, red-stained coffee filters, drain cleaner, batteries, and cold tablet packages)
- Renters who pay only in cash

There are more than 25 toxic chemicals that can be used in cooking Meth. Each pound of Meth produced leaves 5 to 6 pounds of toxic waste behind.

If you discover a Meth lab call 911 immediately!

Never attempt to enter the site of a clandestine Meth lab.

Don't confront anyone associated with the production of Meth.
